Dear Roger:

Thanks for sending along the statement you issued on behalf of the Roundtable concerning Wall Street and the budget deficit. It was, as usual, very helpful. I think we can be successful in our endeavors if everyone cooperates. In the meantime, I will look for opportunities to take you up on your generous offer to assist us.

Warm regards.

Dear Morry:

I appreciate knowing of your interest in serving on next year's Delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

As I stated to Dave Abshire, we will certainly give you serious consideration; however, we will not begin reviewing candidates until next spring. At that time, please feel free to contact me again, but I know that Bob Tuttle has made a note to this effect.

Dear Professor Loverd:

Thank you for your letter of October 28. I too am sorry that we were unable to meet and complete our discussions due to the "crush" of events that have taken place recently.

I'm glad that you were at least able to meet with some other key people. I suggest you try to contact Patrick Butler of the Times Mirror who may also be of assistance to you in your research.

Regrettably, I can't be optimistic regarding a date to conclude our discussion; however, should events begin to settle, I'll look forward to helping you complete your project.

Dear Bob:

Thank you for your letter expressing concern over the depressed state of the domestic tungsten industry.

Undoubtedly, negotiation of the orderly marketing agreement will greatly help to alleviate this situation by limiting the level of imported Chinese material, especially ammonium paratungstate. In view of the low market prices, you suggested a cessation in the release of tungsten ores and concentrates from the National Defense Stockpile. However, this commodity plays an integral role in the overall initiative to upgrade our Nation's supply of strategic and critical materials.

Public Law 99-661, which currently authorizes the disposal of approximately 720,536 pounds of contained tungsten, provides for the conversion of chromium and manganese ore to high-carbon ferrochromium and high-carbon ferromanganese. In line with this directive, tungsten was selected for use as payment material under the current ferroalloys upgrading contracts. The tungsten is offered exclusively to the two ferroalloy contractors. Cessation or curtailment of this barter arrangement would severely hamper our Nation's ability to upgrade the National Defense Stockpile.

I share your concern over the plight of the domestic tungsten industry. However, in order to maintain the integrity of our commitment to the ferroalloy industry, tungsten will continue to be offered for barter to the upgraders. You may be assured that this barter program will continue to be managed in a responsible and conscientious manner.

Again, thanks for writing. Best regards.

Thank you for the material which you have thoughtfully sent to me.

With so much to be done here in Washington, I count on the help of the American people. I assure you that I will study this information and share it with the appropriate members of the White House staff.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.
Chief of Staff to the President

Dear Ms. Prusa:

Thank you for your message to Senator Baker following President Reagan's address to right-to-life leaders on July 30.

The President has directed the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Otis Bowen, to issue new regulations to clarify the meaning of the abortion restriction governing Title X and to ensure that Federal funds are denied to any program that encourages, promotes, or advocates abortion; that counsels or refers clients for abortion; or that assists a woman in obtaining an abortion. The proposed regulations were published in the Federal Register on September 1. The President has stated on many occasions his deep concern about abortion, and he will continue to call for policies which reflect our nation's heritage of respect for the sanctity of human life.

In light of your interest, I am enclosing a copy of the President's July 30 remarks.

Again, thank you for writing. Please accept Senator Baker's best wishes.
